Profile

Antoine Damery is a multi disciplinary designer.

Adapting to the scale and constraints of various environments, his conceptualisation process is a global approach ranging from Industrial design, Architecture, Transportation design, Graphic and Art. This global vision enables him to express concepts and design solutions at micro and macro scales. Working on a wide variety of projects, he sees the design process as a field of opportunity, by translating ideas, forms and technology from various industries.

Either a space surrounding you or a product standing in the palm of your hand, his design is about user interaction and perception – technologies and integration.

By transcending social prejudice, his Design aim is to initiate creative thinking within every aspect of a project. His role as a designer is to facilitate collective action by elaborating concepts which become catalysts for the creative process. Through the development of a product, he considers design as an opportunity instead of an absolute necessity. In fact, his design approach is not a forced process that obliges people and actions to adapt, but a dynamic collaboration that brings innovative solutions.

Through his experience in car design with Peugeot and Citroen and in architecture with Peddle Thorp Group, his aim for the future is to create multiple bonds between various creative industries in order to express exciting and innovative design solutions for our living environment.
